On Wednesday night, new officers were initiated into the Arnold Air Society. Maurice J. O'Connell relinquished his position as Executive Commander to take over his new position as Commander, replacing J. Stephen Howard. Anthony F. Ingrisano is filling Commander O'Connell's former position as Executive Commander. Other officers are as follows: Operations and Training Officer - Michael A. Konopka, outgoing - John E. Marr; Information Officer - Robert D. Limoges, outgoing - Laurence F. Noonan; Adjutant Recorder - Frank R. Antonucci, outgoing - William A. Ridolfi. John W. Dirkmaat was elected to his former appointment as Comptroller.

Commander O'Connell holds the rank of Cadet Major in the Society, while Executive Commander Ingrisano holds the position of Cadet Captain. The remaining officers hold the rank of 1st Lieutenant.

Upcoming events concerning the Arnold Air Society include co-sponsorship of Winter Weekend and initiation of new members into the Society. Although there will be no Military Weekend this year, the Society is ex-

Also in the near future is the annual Area A-1 inspection of the Society. An executive board from Area headquarters will do the inspecting.

The Arnold Air Society also sponsors the St. Michael's Championship Drill Team. Their first competition will be to defend their title as National Unarmed Trick Drill Champions in the early spring.

Unity Octave To Be Held Student Leaders To Read

This coming week a Unity Octave will be held on campus. The Octave will run for eight days with a short homily each day. It is held for the intention of Christian unity and is unique in that eight members of the student body will read the sermons. John S. Bryne, John Carbonneau, William C. Stafford, Arnold R. Oliver, Charles Rangess, Denis J. Hauptly, James Lawler, and William Soule were chosen by Rev. Nelson B. Ziter, S.S.E., for the positions they hold on campus.

The Christian Unity Octave developed from meetings between various denominations in order to discuss the issues that keep them apart. Now, instead of each praying in his own particular way, the new trend is to pray together each January for unity among Christians.

Each of these Masses is officially entitled a "Mass for Christian Unity" and was originally called a "Votive Mass for the Removal of Schism." The new name is necessary because of the complexity facing unification.

For nearly 100 years various groups, both Catholic and Protestant, tried without success to establish certain prayers for common use. Catholic objections based on the fear of religious apathy held them back.

It was not until the Second Vatican Council in 1964 that official permission was obtained for combined prayers for unity. The Masses intentions hope to bring about the words of Christ "That they may all be one."

The Unity Octave will open January 18 and continue to January 25. The Masses will be held for the unification of Christians and the spread of Christianity as well as prayers for the Jewish people and a spiritual revival of Catholics.

ROTC Scholarships Offered Full Tuition, Fees, Books

By John Donovan

The United States Air Force has announced that the Air Force will award scholarships to 3000 cadets in its four-year ROTC program. This announcement was made by Brigadier General Donald F. Blake, Commandant of ROTC at the Air University.

These scholarships will be awarded to cadets at over 140 colleges and universities which host four-year programs. Taking effect in the 1967-68 school year, these scholarships cover the cost of tuition, fees, laboratory expenses, and an allowance for books. Recipients also receive a monthly allowance of fifty dollars.

Each college or university is guaranteed the minimum of one scholarship for a sophomore, junior, and senior cadet. The remainder of the scholarships will be awarded on a nationally competitive basis.

Applicants for the scholarship are selected on the basis of scores obtained on the AFOQT, a scholastic average of 2.5 or better based on 4.0, and the rating from an interview board which is composed of school officials and Air Force ROTC staff officers. Names of nominees are then sent to ROTC headquarters for final selection. Those selected are notified by the Commandant of ROTC.

ROTC scholarships were authorized by the ROTC Vitalization Act of 1964. Since its passage, 2000 scholarships have been awarded. By 1970, some 5500 scholarships will be awarded to deserving cadets. This is the maximum number authorized by law to be in effect at any one time.

Expo '67, Scenic Sights

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles concerning Expo '67 to be held in Montreal, starting April 18.

The blend of the English and the French cultures in Canada, has been responsible for the degree of affluence, now shared by most Canadians. The progress of the Canadians will be reflected in the themes of the Fair, and the fact that she is the example for the rest of the world, in her economic, and social progress. Canada, has bared herself from the sides of ideology and is free to enter the world as a determining force, as seen in Expo.

The most unique of the attractions will be the Expo Express and the stations of the system. The Express will carry passengers from Place D'Acuel, to the departing routes from Expo.

Along the route of this system of the future will be the location of the new "city" in the future, the imaginary, and the practical "HABITAT." A pyramideal wonder of 158 houses, from one to four bedrooms, the design of the structure will make it practical for the future renaissance of the decaying cities.

To cross over to the second area of the Expo from the Montreal area, one will take the Pont de la Concordia, which was initially opened in 1965 for the transportation of the construction materials. The singular beauty of the bridge is to be found in the unique orthotropic design of the bridge, one of the few in the world, with the exception of St. Louis and Port Mann. At Ile Ste. Helene, end of the bridge, passengers may take the Expo Express, at

Weekend Chairmen Named

Edward Johnson and William Ridolfi have been selected as co-chairman of this year's Senior Weekend, according to Senior Class President, John Byrne.

Senior Weekend is an event here at St. Michael's which couples itself with the Commencement and Baccalaureate to provide a memorable weekend for the graduates, their families and friends. This year it will take place on the weekend of June 3.

Both Ridolfi and Johnson expressed their interest in the event and if spirit and enthusiasm are any indication it should be a tremendous success.

This same duo were in charge, last year, of the Junior Class movies. Due to their efficient and consistent management of this possible money maker the movies proved to be both financially and socially successful.

If anyone in the Senior Class has any suggestions or questions relevant to the weekend Ted and Bill are both willing and anxious to receive them.

Father Stankiewicz New V.P. Will Head Student Affairs

Rev. John A. Stankiewicz, S.S.E., dean of men at St. Michael's College since 1964, has been named vice president for student affairs at the college, Very Rev. Gerald E. Dupont, S.S.E., president, has announced.

Father Stankiewicz was named to the post by the college's board of trustees, Father Dupont said.

His appointment completes a cycle of administrative changes that began last year.

He is the fourth vice president to be appointed to aid in the administration of the Edmundite college which enrolls some 1300 men.

OTHER V.P.'S

Others are Arnold R. Schaid, vice president for college affairs; Rev. Roger J. Lacharite, S.S.E., vice president for finance and business; and Rev. Joseph L. Hart, S.S.E., vice president for academic affairs. John Buchan, former business manager, has been appointed special assistant to the president.

Eight laymen also have been appointed to the board of trustees, the decision-making body of the college, in a step designed to comply with the Vatican Council's desire to bring laymen into the inner sanctum of the Church. It is the first time since the college's founding in 1904 that laymen have been drawn into the administration.

DUTIES

In his new post, Father Stankiewicz will be responsible for a number of functions which previously were directed by the president or the academic dean.

He will supervise counselling and health services, student housing, non-business areas of food services, student activities, the financial aid office, placement office, discipline and religious activities.

A native of Springfield, Vt., he attended elementary school there, and holds both bachelor's and master's degrees from St. Michael's.

While an undergraduate, he was an outstanding athlete, winning letters in football and baseball.

After he was ordained in 1941 in Burlington, he spent 15 years on the St. Michael's campus, serving as moderator of athletics, dean of men, treasurer

United We Stand, Divided We Walk!

Editorial

In a recent letter to the President's Council, Rev. Gerald E. Dupont, S.S.E., college president, gave a rather detailed financial and development report on the college, presenting the numerous problems that have to be overcome. According to the report, a student enrollment increase is inevitable and a decision on how to accommodate this increase has to be made in the near future.

The increase is estimated at approximately 438 students over the present enrollment, bringing the total number of students at St. Michael's to 1,650. If, the report states, the same percentage of these student board as there are now, it will mean 412 new boarders. Include some 160 students who are presently living off campus and the total is 573.

The question of whether or not to expand has been forced by pressure from the Federal Government, a requirement if a college is to obtain money or land from them. There is also pressure from the alumni, potential students and their parents, and those faculty members who wish St. Michael's to offer its facilities more widely.

This seemingly gigantic increase means that the college will have to provide dormitory space for the 573 extra, increase the faculty by 32 teachers to maintain the 14 to 1 student-teacher ratio, provide 10 classrooms if Aquinas Hall is kept and 18 if it isn't, enlarge the language laboratory and possibly the science laboratories, build an addition to Nicolle Hall, construct a new or build an addition to the old dining hall and increase the college's recreational facilities. All which go to make this increase a far sweeping scheme.

There is also mention that the leveling of Austin Hall would be a fine thing, but would necessitate the construction of a Fine Arts Center which would also be a fine thing but would cost a fine $1,000,000.

Thus, if the college were to follow this course of action, including costs for the library, the report says, it would cost an estimated $6,698,449. However, there is a second means of obtaining the desired increase and at less cost.

This plan involves the rehabilitation of college owned property at Fort Ethan Allen. This would take care of 300 of the increase and then would require building a new dormitory to accommodate only 200 more. The only construction left, would be an addition to Nicolle Hall, and an office building, bringing the total of costs (including the library) to $54,598,499, or, as the report so aptly noticed, $2,000,000 less than the plan.

However, we feel that if the college were to decide on rehabilitating Fort Ethan Allen they would be making an extremely serious mistake. If they went ahead with this plan, 300 students would be living off the main campus. And if the new dormitory were constructed on this location (the report did not specify) there would be 500 students located there, or approximately one third the student body. This in turn, no matter if there were 300 or 500 living at the fort, would require the construction of a new dining hall for them, which will be a necessity in either case, but with this plan the hall logically would be built as near their living quarters as possible. As it is, the college is going to be presented with a vast transportation problem. The distance between the off-campus campus and the main campus is not too far to walk in good weather, but in foul weather it is out of the question to expect 300 to 500 students to parade over a mile down the sidewalk to the main campus.

Also, according to this plan, the Fine Arts Center would be located at the Fort. Thus, the 1200 students located at the main campus would find it necessary to parade over the same route but in the opposite direction of the Fort students.

The result of this rehabilitating would be that St. Michael's College would have two completely separated campuses, yet neither one of them complete. Not only would the college find itself in this rather embarrassing position, but they would also find, assuming the pressure to expand does not diminish, that after having built and rehabilitated the college is in the exact same situation as it was when they began the program, only with a larger enrollment.

Wouldn't it be more practical to try and accomplish a bit less and expand the college in a sensible fashion. If, for example, plans for the Fine Arts Center, were put off to a much later date, the first program would decrease in costs by $1,000,000. Hence, the difference between estimated costs of the two programs is a question of another $1,000,000. Perhaps the Fine Arts Center is badly needed, but not to the same degree as is a new classroom building or a new office building. We feel that the difference in quality between the two programs is worth much more than $1,000,000.

S.O.S.-WSSE!

With the reinstatement of radio station WSSE as a functioning organization on campus certain difficulties are bound to arise. With the late commencement of activities this year an early fund raising campaign for the away basketball games was impossible as the station personnel didn't know whether or not they would be on the air.

As a result of this situation it becomes necessary to ask the student body to help fulfill the financial need which is incurred due to the high cost of broadcasting these games so that we may follow our team as they are representing the college in games away from the campus. While advertising and school funds aid in financing these games, there is a gap of funds to be met and it is our duty as students to help fill it.

While our team is on the road we certainly want to hear the games, even if we cannot be present. It is our duty as loyal members of a college which presents so fine a team to the public and a team which is giving its all on the court.

We, the students of St. Michael's have an obligation to fulfill; we must support our team financially as well as verbally, we must prove to ourselves and to the administration that there is a strong student spirit which is united in the support of a team which any college in the country would be proud!

Grad Courses Start Feb. 3

St. Michael's College will offer eight graduate courses during the second semester which will begin Friday, Feb. 3, and Saturday, Feb. 4. Dr. Robert J. Giroux, director of extension services, has announced.

Classes will meet Fridays in Jemery Hall on the Winooski Park liberal arts college's main campus and Saturdays at Building 1410 on the Ethan Allen campus.

Dr. Giroux will offer a Coordinating Seminar Fridays at 7:30 p.m. while Dr. Alfred Cismaru, Chairman of the Modern Language Department, will teach a course on French prose of the 19th Century the same night.

Saturday courses will include a History of Western Higher Education, 1150-1800, taught by Dr. John P. Doyle, assistant professor of philosophy; Psychology of Individual Differences, Dr. Giroux; Statistics I, Rev. James R. Coombs, S.S.E., assistant professor of education; Measurement of Aptitudes and Interests, Rev. Bernard Bechard, S.S.E., assistant professor of education;

Administration, Vincent Durnan, principal of Champlain Valley Union High School; and the Study of Prose Fiction, Dr. Edward F. Murphy, chairman of the English Department at St. Michael's.

Further information on the courses can be obtained from Miss Maureen McNamara, coordinator of extension service at the college.

On The Preserved Biological Specimens Cluttering Up The Lab Shelf

*On crowded shelves these bottles stand, for some PhD to use,
I'd think it so much better planned,
if they instead held booze;
While pondering o'er the coming tests,
a glass of Bud does soothe,
But after awaking from numerous rests,
a rum and coke's more smooth.
Scotch and soda, rye and ginger,
sixty cent bottle of wine,
Bloody Mary, gin or Stinger, why doesn't beer grow on a vine?
Creme de Cocoa or old Irish Mist, or sloe gin fizz with a cherry,
Why doesn't the egghead forget the test,
and let us have time to be merry?*

Church Problems Discussed Ex-Priest To Be Married

By ROBERT TAFT

FATHER KEATING

Is the Church necessary? In this age when the social demands of her members seem too great for her to handle, many may think they have cause to ask this question. Recently it was given a negative answer. Coming to the realization that twenty years as a priest was ruining his life, Fr. Davis left the clergy, and has since made plans for marriage. Although the event was nothing really new, the repercussions of it echoed around the world, ultimately creeping into last Sunday's sermon here on campus. As the clergy necessarily had to take the defensive, The MICHAELMAN decided to ask the head of the theology department, Father Keating, for his opinion on the issue. In my interview with him, not only this controversy, but also others concerning the Ecumenical Council were touched on.

THE DAVIS ISSUE

From the start, Fr. Keating made it clear that he believed a question of faith, and not merely of illegitimate marriage was at stake. "The fact that Fr. Davis would marry," he contended, "was a sign that he did not believe in the Church." Father further noted that the ex-Catholic's loss of faith extended from the dishonesty he claimed to have found in the hierarchy of the Church. A lack of frankness on the part of the ecclesiastical leaders and the fact that they held too much authority gave Fr. Davis enough grounds to classify them as an "obstacle," rather than an aid in reaching God. Asked to comment on the question of celibacy in the clergy, Fr. Keating said that he would like to see marriage made "optional" to those men interested in both the sacrament of Holy Orders and matrimony.

MEAT ON FRIDAY

Along the same vein, I asked Father what he thought about the allowance of meat on Friday, and whether or not, he thought Mass on Sunday would likewise become a matter of individual choice.

"Anyone familiar with the New Testament," he began in answer to the first question, "should realize the importance self-denial plays in a person's life. But for a college student to have to give up meat, or any other kind of food for that matter, should hardly be obliged of him." Father would substitute the word self-discipline for self-denial in speaking of the matter. To be a good student or a good teacher, truly dedicated to his work, would be sufficient penance for anyone. More than enough, I think everyone would agree.

MASS ON SUNDAY?

Needless to say, Father appreciates the removal of the Friday abstinence from law. When asked about the Sunday Mass, he also nodded in approval, but added one distinction. "Mass is essential to Catholic life," he said. "The recognition of the intrinsic value of the Mass is important for any real Catholic." He further spoke out against, as he put it, the "over-legalistic," the "I-have-to-go" aspect of the Mass. According to Father, optional Sunday Mass would probably do away with this attitude, (and perhaps a few lackadaisical Catholics as well).

BIRTH CONTROL?

Concerning this issue, Father again said that he thought the Church would at length leave the decision up to the individual. "However, the choice," he added, "would be one of the lesser of two evils. As it is against the law of Nature, and ultimately God, contraception will never be condoned by the Church. But in time the decision to use it should be a matter for the individual in a certain situation to decide for himself."

Finally, Father Keating could not figure out why Fr. Davis rebelled against the Church just as she was granting so many privileges to her members. Perhaps the ex-Catholic was too rash, perhaps the Church is still too thoughtful, too conservative. In any event the Church lost a petitioner; the petitioner, his faith. The decision was his own, and only he can be blamed or praised for solving his problem concerning the necessity of the Church.

Next Play Will Be "Luther" Tryouts Begin Jan. 29

Donald A. Rathgeb, director of drama at St. Michael's has announced that the spring drama production will be "Luther" by John Osborne.

The play was originally produced in England in 1961 by the British Stage Company, and later appeared on Broadway as a successful David Merrick production.

"Luther," which has aroused a great deal of controversy, presents a vivid picture of the turbulent life of the sixteenth century religious reformer. The play covers a period of about twenty-four years, beginning when the young Luther enters the convent of the Augustinian Order of Eremites in 1506 and ending in 1530 following many years of internal and external strife.

Rathgeb stated that there would be many difficulties in producing "Luther," not the least of which will be a fragmented rehearsal period, because of mid-winter recess, sports events and various activities that will require the use of the playhouse.

There will, however, be many advantages over last semester's production, "The Birds." Among them will be the broader range of interpretation available for the development of the characterizations, Rathgeb said.

Tryouts for the play will be held in the playhouse on Sunday, Jan. 29 in the afternoon, and Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 30-31 in the evening.

Tentative dates for final production are March 15, 16, 17. Rathgeb stated that anyone wishing to borrow a copy of the script overnight during the tryouts, may sign them out with Joseph Ippolito, Drama Club President.

A Protestant chaplain with the First Medical Battalion in the Chu Lai area of Vietnam has written to the president of the Freshman Class to thank him for the Christmas packages sent to Vietnam by St. Michael's College students.

Lt. Commander John A. Baxter, U.S.N.R., wrote the letter to William Soule of South Portland, Me., on Dec. 21.

"Thanks so much for the 15 packages of goodies," Lt. Cmdr. Baxter said.

"The patients really went for them," he added.

Killed in Vietnam

Funeral services were held recently for Lt. (j.g.) Henry L. Klein, Jr., a 1961 graduate of St. Michael's College, who was killed in action in Vietnam Dec. 2.

Lt. Klein, who was to be discharged from the Navy three days before Christmas, died instantly of a gunshot wound in the chest while on duty with a river patrol squadron near the Cambodian border. He was the first St. Michael's alumnus to be killed in Vietnam.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Klein of Delmar, N.Y., Lt. Klein received a bachelor's degree from St. Michael's in 1961. After completing a pre-medical course here, he did some post-graduate work at Potsdam (N.Y.) State College and entered the Navy four years ago.

Lt. Klein attended Naval Officers' Candidate School in Newport, R.I. and a Navy language and survival school in Coronado, Cal. At the time of his death, he was in command of a four-boat patrol squadron on the Chu Lai River in Vietnam, near the Cambodian border.

He went to Vietnam late last March and was recommended for a medal for his courage in one operation against the Viet Cong.

Besides his parents, Lt. Klein is survived by a brother, Melvin, and three sisters, Mrs. James Kluey and Irma and Christine Klein.

Dr. Cismaru Writes Article Analyzes Plays of Ionesco

The dilemma of Eugene Ionesco, French dramatist of despair, is described by a St. Michael's College professor in the current issue of "The Laurel Review", published by West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Dr. Alfred Cismaru, Chairman of the Modern Language Department at the college, analyzes the playwright's problem through his plays which emphasize passivity in the face of a hostile world. Ionesco, perhaps the leader in the theatre of the absurd, peoples his plays with characters who fight futile skirmishes with the trappings of the modern world, succumbing to materialism, conformity and anonymity.

He has arrived at the point where his personal philosophy can best be summed up in his own statement, "The best activity is to refrain from all activity."

This, Dr. Cismaru points out, is a contradiction of the fact that he continues to write plays.

RHINOCEROS

In what is believed to be his most important full-length play to date, Ionesco lashes out at conformity. "Rhinceros" depicts a French town where people are gradually being transformed into rhinos until there is but one human being left. Berenger, the only remaining man, declares, "I am the only man left, and I shall stay that way forever, I am not capitulating."

"BEDLAM"

In "Bedlam Galore For Two Or More", Ionesco portrays a couple who are arguing whether or not the turtle and the snail are the same animal. She holds the affirmative and the man the negative. While they argue, the world outside their apartment is destroyed by bombs and artillery shells in a war they accept very matter-of-factly, but whose origin is absolutely meaningless.

At the end, the ceiling has collapsed and the walls have been torn away by bullets and bomb fragments. Headless bodies and bodiless heads descend from above and the return of peace is shown by the installation of a gallows with which the new regime will establish justice.

"They're going to put us in prison, they're going to kill us," the woman cries.

But, he discovers, there is little satisfaction in being a man when there are no others with whom to share his successes.

Dr. Cismaru points out that the play is a commentary on the modern love of conformity.

"We haven't done anything," the man protests and then adds, "That's exactly why."

In the play, Dr. Cismaru notes, the "dire threat" is seen not to be "merely external."

"It is also rooted in the fact that the characters live their lives in petty but intolerable arguments," he says.

"Their love-hate relationship is familiar to Ionesco's admirers: each views the other as the enemy, the one that must be intellectually and psychologically conquered," he adds.

Dr. Cismaru notes that Ionesco joined the so-called "College of Pataphysicians" in 1955, shortly after writing "Improvisation or The Shepherd's Chameleon" in which he is the main character and mimics himself as a playwright.

PATAPHYSICS

Pataphysics has been described as the "science beyond metaphysics," according to Dr. Cismaru, and is akin to most of the ideas of the surrealists, dadaists and contemporary avant-garde writers.

Of the contradiction, Dr. Cismaru says, "No one is more painfully aware of the necessary incongruity that Ionesco himself."

"The constant and unresolved dialectic of Ionesco's world incorporates the creative act as a means of sublimation and a cure for the obsessions and inner conflicts of the playwright; the flip-pant pataphysician must invent in order to stay alive; he must idealize passivity as the only means of escaping absurdity and remain, at the same time, as active as possible in order to go on probing, seeking, exploring, however blindly, however uncertain the finding," Dr. Cismaru says.

"His view of man's condition, unorthodox but sincere, awakens and stimulates through the continued creation of absorbing and disturbing plays," he concluded.

New Music Professor To Give Piano Recital

Professor Frederick Marantz of the St. Michael's College Fine Arts Department will present a piano recital Sunday, Jan. 15, at 8 p.m. at the college playhouse.

He made his debut as a concert pianist in 1944 at Town Hall in New York City and has given concerts at the National Art Gallery in Washington, Bethany College West Virginia, Queens College in New York City and colleges in Pennsylvania.

Professor Marantz has appeared several times with the Vermont State Symphony Orchestra under Alan Carter and is scheduled to be a soloist for the orchestra in the performance of Brahms B Flat Piano Concerto this year in Springfield.

During his recital, he will play Mozart's "C Minor Fantasy"; Beethoven's "C Major Sonata -- Opus 53" (Waldstein Sonata); Alban Berg's "Sonata"; and two mazurkas and a scherzo by Chopin.

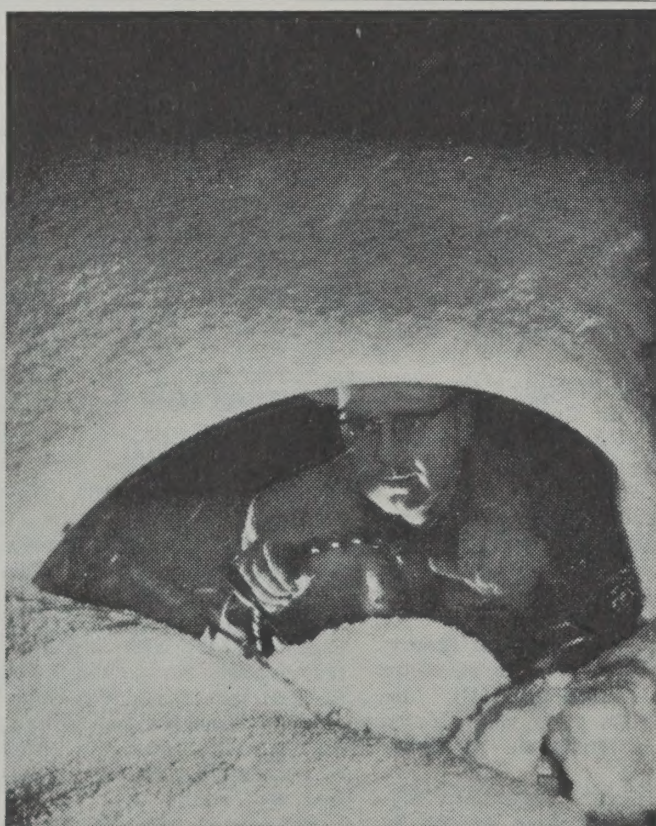

A native of New York City, Professor Marantz holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Columbia University and is a doctoral candidate there.

He has studied the piano with Alberto Jonas, David Saperton and Dr. Edwine Behre. Professor Marantz studied theory with Otto Luening and Edgar Varese.

the convenient station point. To the left will be the Pavilions of Nations where each nation will enact the distinct culture of its folklore, in shows of exciting and rich color. The entire plan is in accordance with the natural beauty of Montreal waterfront, now in the process of historical renewal.

South of the Metro station will be located the Pavilion of the U.S., a unique and striking structure of the "new form," designed by the world famous architect Buckminster Fuller. The structure will consist of a 200 ft. high geodesic dome of polyformed glass and plastic design. The main ideas of the architecture are to portray the bold and rapid rise of America

Unique planning and consultation have been the product of the Canada - U.S. - World development. This display of the nations will be the means of a more actual appreciation of the nature of the word "nation," and a more real sense of the immediacy of the need for peace. Snow, Snow Everywhere But No One Here To Ski

On December 24, the prospects for a white Christmas in Vermont looked pretty bleak.

With just 7 hours to go before Christmas day, the ground was still bare, the trees still green and the town and city decorations without the proper atmosphere. It looked like Santa would have to hitch-hike this time around.

But what was worse to many people was the catastrophic effect it would have on that long awaited ski trip to the Green Mountains. It appeared that all was lost. Those in the ski industry feared losses that could put them back several seasons.

Stowe Mt. Mansfield Inc. reported the possibility of a 25% loss of gross profit if snow didn't come for Christmas week.

Already one Eastern Alpine training camp had been transferred from Madonna to Stratford Mt. for lack of snow and at that it was nearly cancelled.

A National Nordic training camp at Lyndonville, Vt., scheduled for the week of Dec. 26 to Jan. 1 also faced postponement. It sure looked like the Farmer's Almanac had done it this time - it had predicted 30 inches of snow for Dec.

SNOW!

But, the white stuff came through in the clutch.

At 7:15 I walked out of the pool hall only to be met by a virtual blizzard; it was beautiful. By midnight - mass time, better than 6 inches had fallen, and when it finally stopped on Christmas Day, the depth of the snow, valued by state's economists at one million dollars per inch, reached from 9-15 inches.

And it wasn't finished. In the following few days flurries continued and less that a week later another storm, in some areas heavier than the first, left jubilant ski area owners with from 5-15 inches more. Ski conditions in all areas were from good to excellent and Stowe forgot all about their earlier statement as they soon found themselves with nearly 5,000 skiers over the New Year's weekend.

As of this writing, conditions in most areas vary from fair to excellent with most lifts operating and all trails open. So, pack up your boards and head for the slopes.

Oh, by the way, copies of the 1967 Farmer's Almanac are now on sale.

game. Following Cragen is Russell with an excellent 18.8 average per game. The next two scorers are Cody 15.8 and Regan 11.3. Coach Kryger has a well balanced ball club in these four and their effectiveness is again greatly aided by a fine fifth man in Rosinski and an excellent reserve department. Chesney and Gorman are fine reserves and are an intricate part of their running attack. The remainder of the club Rossi, LaPerle, Mullen, Reynolds, Hughes see much action and can be counted on for any clutch situation.

Author Donates Books On Africa To Library

Dr. Thomas P. Melady of New York City, President of the Africa Institute of New York, Inc., has contributed six copies of his books of Africa to the St. Michael's College library.

Dr. Melady also is sending a selection of reprints of his articles on Afro-Asian problems and race relations to the library.

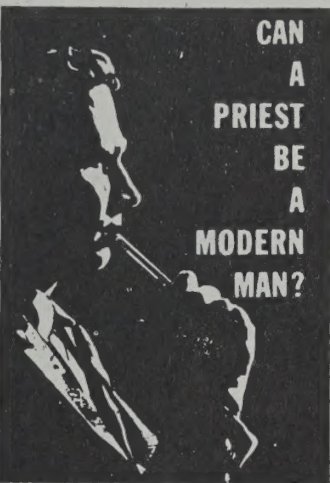

He was decorated in December by Ambassador Joseph N. Owono of Cameroon for his work in developing greater racial harmony.

Dr. Melady is the author of "The Revolution of Color," "Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia," "Faces of Africa," "Profiles of African Leaders" and "White Man's Future in Black Africa."

He is adjunct Professor of African History at Fordham and Permanent Representative of Pax Romana to the United Nations.

Acting

Donald A. Rathgeb, director of drama at St. Michael's, has announced that applications for the summer acting scholarship for the coming year should be submitted before the mid-winter recess. The forms may be picked up by the playhouse or by contacting Joe Ippolito, Drama Club President.

This summer will mark the fifth consecutive year that an apprenticeship has been offered to a member of the Drama Club. In past years, Steve Mayo '66, Denis Hauptly, '68, and Kevin Manning, '68, have all been awarded the scholarship.

Rathgeb said that the selection will be made before the Easter recess.

Scholarship

Potential government careers for college graduates were discussed by representatives of the U.S. Civil Service and 10 other federal agencies during a federal careers day Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. in Alliot Hall.

They also outlined application procedures for government posts, according to Richard McDowell, Director of Placement and Financial Aid at the college. He was in charge of arrangements for the day.

Since Tuesday's program was the only one in the Burlington area this year, McDowell said students at the University of Vermont, Trinity College and Champlain College were invited to attend.

The Super Bowl

Most people are of the opinion that the Super Bowl is Jan. 15, yet, I cannot convince myself that this contest could be any more super than the Green Bay-Dallas game played Jan. 3rd. In the NFL championship game, which must be considered one of the greatest games ever played on the gridiron, we saw the Packers abandon their traditional conservative game and couple experience with perfection en route to a 34-27 victory. In Dallas we saw an inexperienced but nevertheless poised team as Meredith and Co. played almost flawless football. The difference between the two teams is that the Packers thrive on perfection and did play flawless football, epitomized by the team general Bart Starr. Starr filled the air with footballs all afternoon, exactly what Dallas wanted, the only problem was Dallas couldn't capitalize as Starr's perfection led to 19 completions in 28 attempts and no interceptions. On the defensive ledger the Packers proved to all why they are the champions of football. The major task was to prevent Bob Hayes from getting beyond the secondary in to T.D. territory and if I remember correctly Herb Adderly and Bob Jeter allowed the fleet footed flanker but one reception for minus yardage. The Packer defense was tested again in the closing seconds of the game when Dallas suddenly found themselves a touchdown away from a tie with 1st and goal to go from the Packer two-yard line Meredith sent Reeves through the line for no gain, followed by a penalty which moved the Cowboys back to the six. After a short completion to the two, Meredith was pressured by all-pro defensive ace Dave Robinson and threw off balance in to hands of the awaiting Packers.

The Kansas City Chiefs like the Cowboys are inexperienced, and in a game of this caliber $23,000 per man experience usually prevails. Chief coach Hank Stram naturally is of the opinion that the Chiefs will emerge champions, the strategy to control the game and force the packers to play their kind of football. Tom Landry, the Cowboy coach was very successful in this same aspect, yet the experience and perfection of the Packers enable them to adjust to the situation and emerge the victor.

The truth of the matter is that Dallas would have no trouble beating the Chiefs, let alone the Packers, and once again on Jan 15, the day of the famous "super bowl," we will see why the NFL is the superior league in the professional ranks.

Ski Team Wins 1st Meet at Bolton

By Rusty Valsangiacomo

St. Michael's College won its own Invitational Ski Meet held at Bolton Valley Saturday and Sunday, beating out a field of seven other teams with Syracuse coming in second.

The Ski Team which has been practicing hard for the past few months made their strong debut with the help of three sophs; Tom Kenelly, Tom Kelly and Gary Luter.

On the whole this was a team effort led by perennial standout Dave Irish, who placed 2nd and 1st in the Giant Slalom on successive days, and backed by Jr. Bill Wilson and Sr. Steve Reynes.

Under the guidance of new coach Reudi Wyrsch the skiing Knights swept the meet by 16 points. With this impressive opener the Knights look like the team to beat in the remaining season showing an unusual amount of depth and talent. The next meet will be at West Point on Jan. 28-29.

Much of the success of the meet goes to Prof. Tom Cassavant, race chairman, and his able helpers, John Barna, John Carboneau, Peter Legere and finally John Lacaire. The general consensus was that this was a well executed meet and that Bolton Valley officials deserve much of the credit.

The final results are as follow:
Giant Slalom - Team Scores
SMC 25.5, Paul Smith's 29.0, Syracuse 42.0, LeMoyne 44.0, Norwich 47.0, Cornell 49.5, Cortland 51.0, Colgate 56.5.

Slalom - Team Scores
Syracuse 22.0, SMC 24.0, Cornell 27.0, Paul Smith's 31.0, Colgate 39.0, Cortland 46.0, LeMoyne 83.0, Norwich 84.0.

Giant Slalom (Sat.)
1. James Dolan, Norwich; Dave Irish, SMC.

Giant Slalom (Sun.)

1. Dave Irish, SMC; James Dolan, Norwich.

Final Standings

1. SMC, 49.5; 2. Syracuse, 64.0; 3. Paul Smith's, 66.0; 4. Cornell, 74.5; 5. Colgate, 95.5; 6. Cortland, 97.0; 7. LeMoyne, 127.0; 8. Norwich, 131.0.

Knights Make 10-2 Record Review of Vacation Games

On Monday night St. Mike's beat a stubborn Norwich team 86-76 in a game where substitutes played an important role. Bob Kryger and Dave Gleason both came off the bench and did outstanding jobs. The Knights' lead had been cut to 3 and Kryger and Gleason both scored two key baskets to put the Knights comfortably ahead. Falkenbush again was the high scorer with 27 followed by Gleason with 17 and Kryger with 14.

Since the last edition the Purple Knights of coach Ed Markey have played 10 games winning eight and losing two both heartbreakers, one to Assumption and the other to Merrimack. Let's take a look at each game and point out the individual stars and the underlying reasons why the Knights are ten and two at this point.

After opening up with easy wins over St. Lawrence and Norwich, the Knights dropped a 78-76 thriller to Assumption the number one small college team in the east. St. Mike's put up a gallant fight and led through much of the second half but Tom O'Connor's two foul shots with :16 seconds left iced the Greyhounds come from behind victory. Dick Falkenbush and Ralph Coleman led the Knights in scoring with 25 and 14 respectively.

State foe Middlebury was next and after a 42-42 standstill at halftime, the Knights rung up 62 points in the second half and smothered the Pathers 110-82. Dick Falkenbush and Tom McKenna led the Knights with 28 and 23 respectively.

Adelphi University hosted St. Michael's just before Christmas but received an undesirable gift in the form of an 93-85 loss to our hustling Knights. Tom McKenna was the high scorer in the game with 29 points while Dick Falkenbush scored 19 himself and held Adelphi's high scorer Pat Morrales to 4 points in an excellent all-around game.

The next stop was the Central Connecticut Tournament and after two relatively easy wins over Wesleyan 86-78 and St. Anselm's 86-76, the Knights were pitted in the finals against the powerful Central Connecticut team and the game proved to be a real heart-stopper. Dick Falkenbush's two foul shots with :18 seconds left sent the game into overtime and Bruce Stryhas' driving layup with :24 seconds won the game and gave the Knights a big upset win. Falkenbush with 22 and Stryhas with 19 were the high scorers. Bruce Stryhas was named the most valuable player of the tourney playing three fine games and scoring 62 points.

Fresh off their tourney championship, the Knights were promptly upset by Merrimack 101-97 in what was thought to be an easy win. Merrimack played a hustling game and 5'9" guard Joe Daley who scored 35 points was the leader of the Merrimack comeback. Dick Falkenbush had 19 points and played only 4 minutes of the first half while Bruce Stryhas led the Knights with 24 points.

The team returned to Memorial Auditorium on January 7, and beat Stonehill 90-81 in a rather sloppy game. Dick Falkenbush led the Knights with 23 points and was his usual outstanding self on defense. The Knights had a 20-point lead cut to 4 with three minutes left but Bob Joyce dropped in two foul shots and a driving layup to put the game beyond the reach of the Chieftains.

The Knights have played brilliantly at times this year but the one thing they have lacked is consistency. Hopefully they will reach their peak this Saturday night when the A.I.C. Aces come to Burlington with a real powerhouse.

Dick Falkenbush stretches to get a rebound from St. Lawrence, helping to send them to defeat.

The S.M.C. frosh have added three more victories during vacation to bring their total to six against no defeats. The Squires faced Middlebury, Plattsburgh State and Norwich. In the Middlebury game the Knights were sparked by Cragen (18), Russell (18) and Regan (16). The Squires had little trouble in the first half as they led by 14 after two quarters. In the second half Middlebury outscored the Knights but not quite enough as the Squires came out on top 84-73. Browning and Korm were the big guns for the young Panthers as they hit for 19 and 18 respectively. Against Plattsburgh State, Purple Power reigned throughout. The Squires led by 20 points going into the second half and ended the contest with a 28 point lead, 89-61. The frosh were again paced by Cragen, who threw in 26 for the winners. Cragen was supported in fine fashion by Russell, Cody and Regan who hit for 19, 12 and 12 respectively. The Staters were led by Clark (16) and Hartpence (14). When the Squires met the Cadets of Norwich it was the same story as they led at half time 39-23. At the end of the game the Knights left the floor with a substantial 99-69 victory. The freshmen aces, Cragen, Cody and Russell again did most of the scoring as they combined for 71 points. The Cadets were paced by Weeks (22) and Croal (15).

The Frosh as a team have compiled some interesting percentages. Offensively the Squires have averaged 90 points per game while defensively they have allowed 72 per game. From the free throw line the Knights are hitting at a .656 clip. Leading the team in this department is Cragen (.726), Regan (.701) and Russell (.660). Individual scoring for the club is led by Cragen who is averaging 21.3 points per game.

Bruce Stryhas outreaches a Norwich player under the boards to get a rebound. Norwich lost 86 to 76.
